About David Johnston Architects

David Johnston Architects provides large architectural firm resources with a small firm’s ability to grant individual attention. After graduating from Miami University of Ohio in 1986, David Johnston worked for several years in Aspen before opening his own architectural studio. He wanted to build a firm that didn’t “turn out” projects, but instead one that focused on specific client needs with a creative and courteous approach. Founded in 1997, David Johnston Architects is now a full-service architecture firm emphasizing quality design and hands-on service for both commercial and residential projects. Although David Johnston Architects has grown since its inception, the original vision remains. Together with a full staff of designers, project managers and production staff, DJA is dedicated to fulfilling your architectural aspiration.
